THANKSGIVING

All through September and October the work has been leading up to Thanksgiving. The work of November will recall and deepen the impression of the harvesting and add to it the stories of the Pilgrims and of Indian life.

Even in ancient times we find that a day for thanksgiving was kept in nearly every country.

The first thanksgiving day in all history was the Hebrew Feast of Tabernacles.

The Pilgrims were the first people to observe Thanksgiving in America.

They were persecuted in England, and for the sake of their religion, left their homes and went to Holland, where they thought to dwell in peace.

But Holland did not seem like home to them, so they returned to England, and from Southhampton they sailed in a vessel the Mayflower, from the old world to the new.

It was in December, 1860 they moved their bark on Plymouth Rock and their songs of thanks floated far out across the water and into the deep forest. But before spring came in all of her splendor, many of their number had died.

Famine and fever had spread destruction in the land. Many times did their thoughts wander far beyond the sea to home and loved ones. But when spring came again they sowed seed, believing that they would reap, and when autumn came they harvested abundantly, and it was then they kept their first Thanksgiving day, and they thanked the Lord for his care. The Indians came from the forest to aid in their way, and Massasoit said: "The Great Spirit loves his white children best."

If the Pilgrims could be so thankful in a wild and desolated land and trust in God, how much more thankful should we be, who have so many blessings bestowed upon us.

Note the blessings: Now our barns are full of oats, hay, wheat, rye, corn and our cellars are full of potatoes, fruits and vegetables. How thankful we should feel as we look upon these full barns and cellars.

The harvest is God's gift to us. How many more thanks has God given us to be thankful for. Our pleasant homes, the mothers whose hands make the homes so
